Canadians gathered around the eternal flame on Parliament Hill yesterday afternoon to pay tribute to Jack Layton. They left flowers, candles, cards and cans of Orange Crush — an icon of the NDP's gains in Layton's last election.

Some cried and hugged, others spoke about how he touched their lives.

"Jack Layton has inspired every Canadian in a really friendly kind of way and he has given us a little hope in politics," said Pascal Boyer, recalling shaking Layton's hand at an NDP convention in Gatineau and the NDP leader's remarkable strength, despite a recent battle with cancer and a broken hip.

Layton's fight with cancer moved Alan McKay to bring his sons, aged 5 and 7, to the gathering on the Hill.

"In a way, it's a memorial of their grandfather," said McKay. "My father passed away a couple of weeks ago, from cancer as well, and he was a strong supporter of the NDP."

Many mourners were not NDP partisans. Some, like Julia Laforge, said they simply cared for the man they only knew through his public personality.

"I feel that we've lost a really genuine person. I certainly didn't know him personally, but I feel like I did," she said, starting to cry. "He was someone we really needed in Canadian politics and I'm having a hard time imagining what it's going to look like without him."

Throughout the day, local groups and politicians issued messages of condolence, including Mayor Jim Watson, the Capital Pride Committee, the Ottawa and District Labour Council, and Vanier MP Mauril Belanger.

Mom wants help for son trapped in Libya

► Mahdi Nazemroaya

An Ottawa woman wants the Canadian government to do more to protect her son, who is hiding inside the Rixos Al Nasr hotel in Tripoli fearing for his life.

Mahdi Nazemroaya, a University of Ottawa graduate and independent journalist, took shelter inside the hotel with other reporters amid the unrest in Tripoli. When he called his mother, Poursan Asgari, in Ottawa Sunday to ask for help, she called Foreign Affairs.

"I talked to a few people but they didn't give me answers," she said. "There was a lady who called and she said she just had the news that the Canadian government is asking to protect him, but she said I should realize that they cannot do anything."

Asgari is worried about her son's safety given his critical views of the NATO bombings in Libya.

"It's giving me more stress, just thinking, 'OK, now he's alive,' but what next?" she said.

DFAIT could not be reached for comment in time for publication.

As New Democrats mourn the death of Jack Layton, interim NDP leader and Hull-Alymer MP Nycole Turmel faces an uncertain future.

Turmel did not speak to media yesterday, but Karl Bélanger, Layton's senior press secretary for the past eight years, said she will remain in place as interim leader for now.

"Everybody is sad today, distraught by the news. There was so much hope and optimism and good wishes from Canadians that everybody was hoping for a different result. So, of course we're going to spend the day mourning and absorbing the news we learned today," said Bélanger.

"As for the next steps, this is not the time. The party will meet, in due course, and establish the rules for a leadership race, but that will obviously take some time."

In the letter Layton wrote to Canadians shortly before his death, he recommended Turmel continue as interim leader until a permanent successor is elected.

"I recommend the party hold a leadership vote as early as possible in the new year, on approximately the same timelines as in 2003, so that our new leader has ample time to reconsolidate our team, renew our party and our program, and move forward towards the next election."

The NDP leadership election of 2003 was held in late January. Layton was elected to replace retiring leader Alexa McDonough.

Turmel called Layton "a courageous man" in a statement she released yesterday. "It was his leadership that inspired me, and so many others, to run for office," her statement said.

FALLING UNDER LAYTON'S CHARM

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

I had lunch with Jack Layton once. I wrote a column about the West and the man from Toronto needed votes in the West, so we found ourselves at my favourite Szechwan restaurant in Vancouver.

The first surprise is that he ordered in Cantonese — learned from his wife, Olivia Chow. It surprised me, but the waiter was dumbfounded after so many years of being yelled at by unilingual patrons intent on ordering the fried green beans Szechwan style.

So I was impressed from the get-go.

Then we started talking about his roots in Hudson, Que., and it turned out we knew a bunch of the same people from Hudson. So after five minutes, he was my BFF.

I'm still not sure how it happened; it sure didn't take him long to get past the Dobermans. I was an easy victim of that legendary Layton charm.

But it wasn't until he started answering questions that I began to understand why more people ended up trusting Jack Layton than the rest of his party, not to mention Michael Ignatieff and the Liberals.

Ignatieff once insulted Jack by calling him a politician, but if all politicians were like Jack Layton, we'd live in a happier nation. Unlike most politicians — unlike Michael Ignatieff — Jack actually enjoyed mixing it up over fried beans and orange-peel chicken.

The interview turned into a kind of argument about energy. I asked him what he would say to oil company CEOs about the oilsands, and while he didn't reject the oilsands out of hand, he came back at me with all kinds of questions about their sustainability and about depending on an inefficient and limited source of energy when there were so many alternatives to be developed. He stuck to his guns even though it would have been better politics to stick to the usual array of meaningless messages.

Talk about energy. Jack could light a city the size of Winnipeg with the passion and enthusiasm he brought to his arguments. But he brought something else — he was comfortable with his own answers. It was as if he actually believed what he was saying.

We stayed and argued long past the hour allotted for lunch. His assistant's BlackBerry buzzed ominously but Jack kept going.

But now he's gone for good. Though not before making several million friends, including one cynical columnist, at lunch.

We'll miss him.

An excerpt of a letter from Jack Layton to Canadians, dated Aug. 20, 2011.

... To young Canadians: All my life I have worked to make things better. ... As my time in political life draws to a close, I want to share with you my belief in your power to change this country and this world. There are great challenges before you, from the overwhelming nature of climate change to the unfairness of an economy that excludes so many from our collective wealth, and the changes necessary to build a more inclusive and generous Canada. I believe in you. Your energy, your vision, your passion for justice are exactly what this country needs today. You need to be at the heart of our economy, our political life, and our plans for the present and the future.

And finally, to all Canadians: Canada is a great country, one of the hopes of the world. We can be a better one — a country of greater equality, justice, and opportunity. ... My colleagues in our party are an impressive, committed team. Give them a careful hearing; consider the alternatives; and consider that we can be a better, fairer, more equal country by working together. Don't let them tell you it can't be done.

My friends, love is better than anger. Hope is better than fear. Optimism is better than despair. So let us be loving, hopeful and optimistic. And we'll change the world.

All my very best,
Jack Layton

Jack Layton, 1950-2011

Looking back at the life and times of late NDP leader Jack Layton.

July 18, 1950

Born in Montreal and grew up in Hudson, Que. He took his BA at Montreal's McGill University in the late 1960s, when radicalism blew through campuses like a stiff gale. The rebellious vigour of the times led him to political activism.

First elected to Toronto city council. Layton, seen here in 1985, served on Toronto and Metropolitan Toronto councils for 20 years. He was a politician in the mould of a people's tribune, with rolled-up sleeves, 14-hour days and seven-day weeks.

Layton, seen here on the campaign trail in Montreal in April, leads the NDP to a record 103 seats and official Opposition status. Two months later, he would take a leave of absence to deal with another type of cancer.

Elected leader of the federal NDP, winning on the first ballot. After which, Layton, seen here at a Toronto Father's Day charity event in 2004, criss-crossed the country to raise the party profile. The trademark grin, the brush moustache, the earnest optimism, the characteristic head tilt were the tools of his trade.

Layton, seen on Day 3 of the 2006 NDP convention in Quebec City, receives 92 per cent approval rating.

Picking up the pieces in Goderich

► Canada's 'prettiest' small town left in shambles ► Locals given 12-minute warning before powerful tornado touched down in southwestern Ontario

Residents of a town dubbed the prettiest in Canada wandered in shock yesterday through streets buried in rubble and mangled trees, some dissolving into tears as they took in the destruction caused by the most powerful tornado to hit Ontario in years.

The people of the picturesque Lake Huron community of Goderich seemed paralyzed, not sure what to do next.

"We will repair this town," vowed Mayor Delbert Shewfelt.

At least 37 people were injured and a 61-year-old worker at a salt mine was killed as winds of 280 km/h raged through the town of 8,000 on Sunday, ripping the roofs off historic buildings, reducing trees to matchsticks and tossing cars around like toys.

Debbie Hakkers, 49, crawled through the wreckage of her bedroom, sifting through the debris to fish out her jewelry box and laptop.

She rushed home from an out-of-town shopping trip on Sunday night to find her home torn apart with the roof ripped off.

Her husband Gary, who was inside when the tornado struck at about 4 p.m., escaped with only a few scrapes, but the home they shared is in ruins.

"It never really hit me until this morning when I got up and came outside and I just cried," Debbie Hakkers said, wiping away tears as she surveyed the rubble. THE CANADIAN PRESS

House costs sky-high

- RBC Economics reports home ownership costs up in the second quarter of 2011
- The Canadian Real Estate Association says costs will stabilize in late 2011 to 2012

City Housing Ranks

RBC's housing affordability index measures the costs of owning a home at going market values.

- Vancouver is the most expensive city with costs equivalent to 92.5 per cent of a household's monthly income, up 10.4 percentage points from the previous quarter.
- Toronto is in second with 51.9 per cent, up 2 points.
- Other major cities include: Ottawa (41.2 per cent, up 1.3 points), Calgary (37.1 per cent, up 0.6 points), Edmonton (33.8 per cent, up 0.6 points) and Montreal (42.6 per cent, up 1.4 points).
- The national figure was 43.3 per cent and was up 1.7 points.

Home ownership in Canada became more expensive for the second straight quarter, but recent global market and economic turmoil could actually help keep a lid on expenses by keeping interest rates low, RBC Economics reported yesterday.

During the second quarter of 2011, the proportion of pre-tax income required to service the costs of owning a home increased for all types of houses measured in RBC's housing affordability index. But that trend may turn around going forward, said Craig Wright, RBC's senior vice-president and chief economist.

"Renewed turmoil in global financial markets has caused heightened uncertainty with respect to the pace of global growth and we need to factor this into our outlook for the Canadian housing market," he said. "However, this volatility might have a silver lining; housing affordability in Canada may not deteriorate as quickly or by as much as we previously expected."

The Bank of Canada will be in no hurry to raise interest rates in Canada, which helps keep variable rate mortgage costs down.

RBC expects that the central bank will now keep interest rates at the current low one per cent until the middle of next year.

"The postponement of interest rate increases might motivate homebuyers to stay active longer," said Wright.

Israel cuts deal with Google a deal with the Internet giant meant to ensure its panoramic Street View service would not aide terrorists planning attacks on sensitive sites.

Critics in other countries have long accused Google of infringing on personal privacy with its mapping and photography technology. Initial worries in Israel were that the detailed photos could help terrorists plot attacks against sensitive locations or political figures.

A panel of government ministers met for six months to draft guidelines meant to ensure Israel's security would not be compromised. Israel an-

Google "agreed to all of our requests," said Moti Ohana, media adviser to Intelligence Minister Dan Meridor, who headed the committee. Ohana refused to divulge details of the security arrangements.

A spokesman for Google Israel said the company hopes to provide updates soon about the project's launching, but wouldn't say when the service will begin in Israel.

Street View is already available in more than 30 countries on all seven continents. Israel will be the first Middle Eastern country to display its cities and streets with the service.

Shooting hoops helps newcomers find friends and advice

Coming from the basketball-loving Philippine Islands, Ronald Miranda was happy when he saw the neighbourhood basketball court after arriving in Kitchener, Ontario. Little did he know, the game would help him find new friends who would offer sound financial advice.

It all began when the software engineer came to Canada in 2008 to accept a job with a high-tech company. While Ronald was excited to bring his wife and daughter to North America, reality soon set in. "We didn't know anyone here. We had no family and no idea where to get groceries or other necessities," recalls Ronald.

Fortunately, new friends showed them around, including the local basketball court where their families gathered for Friday night games. The growing roster of players included Cris Santos, a Philippine native, and Branch Manager at Scotiabank's Courtland & Shelley branch, in Kitchener, Ontario.

"The game created an extended family for us," says Cris, who adds that basketball helped ease his own transition to Canada when he arrived six years earlier. "Sports can help build a community for newcomers who share all kinds of first-hand advice and experience."

Off the court, Ronald turned to Cris to understand the banking system and when Ronald saw plans for the perfect four-bedroom home, he connected with Cris once again for a mortgage¹ pre-approval.

"I ask newcomers about their goals so that they can start working towards them," says Cris. He suggests that newcomers who plan to settle in Canada should think about buying a home or other longer-term goals. "I tell them about pre-authorized contributions to high-interest savings accounts, to save for a downpayment, or Registered Education Savings Plans (RESP)² for their children's future," explains Cris, who mentors at the YMCA Cross Cultural and Immigrant Services Centre.

Cris can appreciate how the right advice when starting out makes for long-term success, since he is providing first-hand advice. While Cris and his wife were veteran bankers in the Philippines, they had to learn the Canadian banking system before landing jobs at Scotiabank (Maria Santos is a Personal Banking Manager at 14 Fischer-Hallman Road North in Waterloo).

"Since we were newcomers, we can empathize with others and are able to guide them and provide trusted solutions suited to their needs," adds Cris. For example, The Scotiabank StartRight Program³ for Newcomers includes a free day-to-day bank account for one year⁴, a wide range of VISA[®] card options⁵ and a number of other customized services and benefits.

For Ronald, the weekly basketball games enabled his family to build a group of friends who now camp and picnic together, plus a Scotia[®] advisor who helped them obtain their new home earlier this summer.

"It started with a small basketball group and the rest is history," remarks Ronald. "Now, when I meet other newcomers, we invite them to play ball and point them to Cris for good advice."

my neighbourhood and hogging the sidewalk.

Strangely, the more they annoyed me the more I wanted to be a part it and so, at the beginning of the summer, I decided that maybe I should try. Of course, I couldn't muster up the motivation to get out there by myself.

I decided that if I was going to do this, a Learn to Run training clinic was probably the best place to start.

On the first day the instructor shared the secret to running: You only ever have to run for 10 minutes, and then you walk for one minute.

By maintaining a manageable 10-and-one pace, you allow your body to recuperate and are able to control that little voice inside your head telling you "This is too hard." I discovered that I could run forever if I only have to think about running another 60 seconds.

The first few weeks were torturous. My calves, shins, quads and other muscles that had been dormant for years were awoken in an excruciating manner.

Not only was I in constant physical pain, but I also felt self-conscious knowing that I didn't have any of the gear or gadgets to fit in with my new running club. Did I really need a GPS-enabled watch to calculate calorie expenditure and a four-bottle rehydrating fuel belt clipped around my waist?

But as the weeks progressed something unexpected happened — I started to enjoy myself. I felt better, ran faster and for longer, and I realized that if I stretched enough afterwards I could save my muscles from some of the burning pain I was inflicting upon them.

As I ran farther I started exploring new parts of the city. I came across hidden trails and waterfront paths populated with like-minded individuals, a dry-fit army bounding along with matching earbuds.

Sometimes, when I'm not too exhausted to use my facial muscles, I'll give these fellow pavement pounders a smile of recognition. I don't need to hate them any more; I'm one of them now — minus the $300 shoes and pace-monitoring shoelace clip with iPod synchronization.

Becoming a runner has made me smug — not because I think that I am better than anyone else, but because I am becoming an improved version of myself. I've been reborn to run.

Letters

May God bless peace upon Jack Layton's soul for eternal infinite time. Jack Layton fought for a poverty-less society through his whole life — we should carry his spirit and work for his aspiration!

ABDULLAH-BAQUIE GHAZI,
TORONTO

Jack Layton demonstrated his political skill in taking advantage of the opportunity provided by the Liberals and Bloc.

He developed his party into a mass movement and used a combination of his popular support and behind-the-scenes intrigue to propel himself into the official Opposition. Furthermore, he raised the profile of national socialism, showed how a country could behave, and created a virtual certainty that he would be misjudged by opponents. His shoes will not be easily filled.

Suspected smugglers keep pot above water

Three suspected Mexican drug smugglers have found out the hard way that unlike their boat, marijuana floats.

Mexican marines say they rescued three suspected smugglers whose boat was sinking on the Pacific Ocean and then arrested them after finding bales of marijuana floating around the vessel.

The navy said in a statement yesterday the men had been stranded off the port of Ensenada for more than a day before they radioed for help on Saturday.

Authorities suspect the men threw the bales into the water before calling for help.

The navy said that when marines reached them, the men were removing water from the sinking boat, which had suffered an engine malfunction.

More than 120 kilograms of marijuana was floating near the vessel. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Glee Project, where the winner gets a role on Glee, ends with a twist.

Psycho (1998)

Pretty much no one should go near Alfred Hitchcock, ever. But if you're daring enough to try, you should avoid doing a shot-by-shot remake of what is probably the master's best-known film. Still, you've got to admire Gus Van Sant's chutzpah. He shot it in colour — that's different — and added a few slight tweaks. Vince Vaughn plays the role of Norman Bates and Anne Heche plays Marion Crane. It's an intriguing exercise but, ultimately, a noble failure.

City of Angels (1998)

Wim Wenders' Wings of Desire (1987) is a modern classic, and it featured one of the greatest performances by the late Peter Falk. Melancholy, thoughtful and visually arresting, it followed unseen angels who watched over Berlin, quietly shaping people's lives. City of Angels, by comparison, was too obvious — it spelled everything out and its emotions were too tidy. Brad Silberling turned this subtle story into a simple romantic comedy starring Nicolas Cage (as an angel) and Meg Ryan (as a heart surgeon).

The Women (2008)

George Cukor's 1939 cat fight, based on the play by Clare Boothe Luce, was intended as a satire of society mavens and their frivolous lives. In directing for the first time and writing the script, Murphy Brown creator Diane English made it a celebration. Sure, it had an all-female cast of solid actresses (Meg Ryan, Annette Bening, Cloris Leachman), But Cukor's tone and timing were missing; English missed the insights of the source material.

The Invasion (2007)

There've been many versions of the sci-fi classic Invasion of the Body Snatchers, but this one had the least bite. Nicole Kidman, Daniel Craig and Jeffrey Wright went to waste as a few of the last citizens who managed to remain uninfected when a gloopy substance from outer space took over the population, turning people into emotionless drones. The whole point of this story has always been to serve as a reflection of its times, But this time the film's political ideology felt tossed-in.

The Karate Kid (2010)

Harold Zwart's version maintained the basic structure and even some key details, like the sweep-the-leg moment in the finale. It moved the setting from Los Angeles to Beijing, that's no big deal. The main problem was the casting of Jaden Smith, who was several years younger than Ralph Macchio was and looks even younger. And so neither the fighting nor the romance with a girl who's out of his league — two key components — made sense. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Making time for you

► Wellness expert says the best way to recharge is with some alone time ► Unwind with you

CELIA MILNE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Is life too busy? Do you feel overwhelmed? Overburdened? A little solitude may be just what the doctor ordered.

"Time alone is essential to our sanity," says Dr. Susan Biali, a Vancouver-based wellness expert, life coach and author of Live a Life You Love: 7 Steps to a Healthier, Happier More Passionate You.

You need solitude to rest, reflect, plan, dream, and breathe, explains Biali.

"If you don't get enough, you'll be cranky, stressed and even depressed."

For many people, especially introverts and creative people, constant stimulation is a form of physical and mental stress, and time alone helps to balance and defuse that stress. It can actually lower your blood pressure and deepen your breathing.

Mothers with young children and people caring for others get the least down time.

"Almost any mother I speak to says she is dying for more time alone but feels selfish or guilty in wanting it." Biali's advice? "Find the right balance for you and don't feel guilty about it. Being your healthiest, happiest and

Get alone time

So you need more time alone. How do you get it?

► Declare social bankruptcy This is when your schedule and commitments are out of control and you feel like you might self-destruct.

The next time someone asks for your time, you say, "I'm so sorry, but I've declared social bankruptcy until further notice."

► Exercise alone. People who are demanding of your time will accept your desire to exercise for a long and healthy life, even if they don't understand your need to be alone. Try blending the two together. Dr. Biali goes for a walk every single morning by herself, to clear her head and gain energy for the day. Or, escape to the exercise bike in the basement.

most well-adjusted self if the best gift you can give to others, as ultimately you'll be able to give to them more effectively."

Signs that you need an alone fix: You are irritable, you feel like snapping, you feel like screaming, you fantasize about time alone, you feel weepy, worn out and exhausted.

Check with your doctor to make sure you're not clinically depressed.

Chances are, you just need a break.

► "I never said, 'I want to be alone.' I only said, 'I want to be left alone.' There is a whole world of difference," actress Greta Garbo famously mused.

► Even 15 minutes of exercise a day can add years to life, study finds ► Don't use it as an excuse to slack

Don't despair if you can't fit in the recommended 30 minutes of daily exercise. Growing evidence suggests that even half that much can help.

It's still no excuse to slack off. Regular exercise strengthens muscles, reduces the risk of some diseases and promotes mental well-being. The more exercise, the better.

But not everyone has the time or willpower. So researchers set out to find the minimum amount of physical activity needed to reap health benefits. The findings by a study in Taiwan suggest just 15 minutes of moderate exercise a day can lead to a longer

This "may convince many individuals that they are able to incorporate physical activity into their busy lives," Dr. Anil Nigam of the University of Montreal said in an email. Nigam had no role in the

PROTECTING YOUNG MOUTHS FROM SPORTS INJURIES

Can you believe how close we are to the end of another summer? Before you know it, we will be sharing the roads with school buses once more. And along with the ritual of back to school, autumn brings with it the return of another Canadian ritual: hockey!

Like you, we are fans of this great, Canadian game. But I am sure most of us have that nagging concern in the back of our minds...what if our child gets hurt?

The truth is, you spend a lot of money on the best hockey equipment you can find, all in the hope of providing your son or daughter with as much protection from injury as possible. That means you look for the best shoulder pads, elbow pads, gloves. The better the protection they offer, the happier you are.

However, one area that many parents fall short on is the mouth guard. Now, all kids have them as the league's usually require them to wear one. So it is not that the kids lack a mouth guard. What they lack is a top quality mouth guard.

Most parents simply purchase an over-the-counter mouth guard that they find in their local hockey equipment store. Some of these products are fairly good and, when heated in boiling water, can be molded somewhat to fit your child's mouth.

Dr. Martin LaBoissonniere
Dental Surgeon

However, they are no substitute for a custom-fitted mouth guard!

Your dentist can take a mold of your child's mouth so that a mouth guard can be fitted that specifically takes into consideration how his/her teeth come together. That way, you can have a mouth guard specifically designed to reduce the risk of dental trauma for your child, rather than a one-size fits all solution.

It does cost more to have a custom-fitted mouth guard. But if you are prepared to invest in the best shoulder protection, why not adopt the same approach to protecting your child's teeth!

The beauty is if your child is a multi-sport athlete, s/he can use the mouth guard for other sports. Like hockey, football usually mandates that mouth guards be worn by all players.

If you watch a lot of professional basketball, you see a lot of players there wearing mouth guards. If it is good enough for the pros, we believe it is good enough for your children!

So invest in getting the best mouth guard — talk to your dentist about a custom fitted one to maximize your child's protection from sports related dental trauma.

Then you need to take proper care of it! Simply rinsing it under water after a game is not sufficient to remove the germs and bacteria that accumulate on a mouth guard. We recommend brushing it with a toothbrush and toothpaste after every use. You should also soak it in a bacteria fighting mouthwash. Afterall, protecting the teeth from bacteria is just as important as protecting them from trauma.

So take a moment to contact your dentist and talk about a custom-fitted mouth guard. Because protecting young smiles from sports trauma is a healthy habit...and healthy habits lead to healthy lives.

I received a gift certificate from a girlfriend for X-mas. It is for both of us (it was a two-for-one deal) at a spa. After reading the fine print I noticed that "we" are responsible for tax and tip. My question is this: should I have to pay for my half? I didn't expect to have to end up paying for a gift. Fifteen per cent tax and 15 per cent tip (at least) is going to end up being kinda spendy on the $200 gift certificate. Am I wrong to expect her to pay for at least the tax and I can be left to decide what tip I would leave? Karen

Dear Karen,
I fully agree with you that it would be correct for your friend to pay the taxes on the gift that she has given you.

However, I suspect that this is going to end up your expense. I find it strange that the taxes were not collected at the time of purchase, however it is what it is.

Putting taxes aside, any gratuity would be your responsibility unless your friend advises you that she has taken care of this.

LESSONS IN CHEAP FUN AND FRUGAL

LESLEY SCORGIE
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

Feeling stressed about back-to-school shopping?

You're not alone! According to a July 2011 survey conducted by VISA, Canadian households are frazzled by the crowds and are feeling gouged at the till.

The average family plans to spend $400 dollars this year on back-to-school paraphernalia. Of that, almost 50 per cent will be allocated towards clothing.

Save money on back-to-school shopping by slicing your budget in half, starting early and getting creatively frugal. Take an inventory of what you already have; pens, paper, software, backpacks, etc. Don't buy new supplies just because Junior wants them. Shop for necessary supplies throughout the year when stores have sales. Many stores are suffering from low consumer spending and plan to blow out inventory at clearance prices this fall to stimulate sales volumes. Get there early before the quality supplies have been picked over.

Hit up thrift shops, garage sales, neighbourhood clothing exchanges, and websites like eBay or Craigslist. See if you can pick up gently used supplies, computers, furniture, or clothing.

Costco or other wholesalers carry a variety of back-to-school inventory at affordable prices. If your kids have outgrown clothes or no longer need their textbooks, sell them on consignment or exchange with another family.

You don't need to spend hundreds of dollars on back-to-school shopping. School is a place of learning, not a fashion show.

Is the fund love mutual?

ON MONEY

ALISON GRIFFITHS
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

As the last 10 days, and indeed the last 10 years of the stock market have taught us, the financial you-know-what hits the fan on a pretty regular basis.

Recently, many pundits have urged us not to sell our holdings (usually mutual funds) in a panic because good investments will survive the carnage.

This is essentially the buy and hold philosophy, which has been a staple bit of investment advice for decades.

The trouble is it works just fine for mutual fund companies and commission based advisors because they get paid through fees as long as you hang on to your funds. But it doesn't work for most investors.

The reason is that during market meltdowns bad investments are hauled down further than good ones. They also take longer to recover and some never do.

How do you know you've got a stinker of a fund? Easy. Look it up. One of the best sites is morningstar.ca. Type in the name of your fund then click View Quick-take Reports.

Look down the quote page to the performance chart to see how well the fund has done over time compared to its category.

The chart will show a graph with three lines indicating how your fund fares relative to its category and also relative to the broader market.

For example, a broad-based Canadian equity fund would be compared against its category and also against the S&P/TSX Composite Index.

► Alison's money rule: A down market is the perfect time to evaluate the quality of your mutual funds.

You can also ask your advisor to pull up the same information for you on each of the funds you hold.

Note that most mutual funds will not perform as well as the index. Your goal is to have funds that outperform their category.

If any of your funds are sub-par you may want to sell and buy better ones in the same category (check into deferred sales charges first).

You will likely still get sucked down by stock market meltdowns when they happen but a good fund will ride it out much better than its lower quality cousin. CONTACT ALISON AT

A year spent in the rough

STEVE DYKES/GETTY IMAGES

► Graham DeLaet entered three events in June before his back pain returned.

► Back problems have kept Graham DeLaet from following up on his strong PGA debut in 2010

This was supposed to be Graham DeLaet's time to shine.

With an impressive rookie season on the PGA Tour under his belt and a wide open landscape in Canadian golf, the 29-year-old from Weyburn, Sask., seemed poised to step to the forefront of the sport in this country.

Instead, his 2011 season never even got off the ground. DeLaet had back surgery the first week of January and appears likely to finish the year having only played a handful of tournaments.

"When I'm feeling 100 per cent, I'm going to (return)," DeLaet said yesterday in an interview. "I'm not going to do it any sooner than that."

He already got a small taste of what it's like to come back too soon, having entered three events in June before the soreness and stiffness returned.

There remains a possibility he might take part in the PGA Tour's Fall Series — four tournaments held in October following the playoffs — but it is far from certain. That was the best stretch of events DeLaet played as a rookie last season and allowed him to keep his fully exempt status.

It would be tough to let them pass by this year.

"The worst thoughts cross your mind: 'Will I ever be able to play again?'"

GRAHAM DELAET

"I played well in the Fall Series last year so that part of me wants to get going," said DeLaet. "But at the same time, I had that feeling in June and I went out and played and it was just too early. The competitor inside me wants to go but I think you have step back and look at the big picture before you make any kind of commitments."

There is some reason for optimism. DeLaet's back has progressively started feeling better in recent weeks and he's found himself able to perform more challenging positions in bikram yoga.

DeLaet plans to ask the Tour for a medical exemption that will give him 26 total tournaments in 2012 to earn the equivalent of 125th spot on the money list this year.

The back problems date back to an injury DeLaet suffered while playing hockey as a teenager. The pain became unbearable towards the end of last year, forcing him to have surgery to remove a portion of a herniated disc.
